

STARTLING TESTIMONY HAD AT SEMI-PRIVATE POLICE INVESTIGATION

Stolen Cash is Made up to Prisoner in Gambling Raid by Contributions (Some of Them Not Voluntary) From Members of the Force, and Fake Receipt is Used.

That on three different occasions money has been stolen in the police station during the time Silas H. Carpenter was chief of police, and that he failed to pay back to the owner the money that was missing, the funds of the department were manipulated, the amount being charged to the city, is the latest news, and the last prior to the municipal elections many of the officers of the force, with the approval of the chief, were asked and did subscribe to the amount of $40 that was stolen, it is alleged by a member of the force, were a few of the many startling revelations made at the inquiry conducted by Commissioner Booth on Saturday afternoon into the allegations made by a constable who was recently dismissed from the force.

The probe was semi-private. None of the witnesses required to appear were called, but all expressed their willingness to sign a transcript of their evidence if it is considered necessary to hold a thorough investigation.

The探子 many times sprung, and it was apparent that there has been very little harmony heretofore between the members of the force.

At least two of the officers who made statements plainly intimated that they were "ratted" into subscribing to the fund raised for the purpose of putting back into the city's coffers what had been taken.

Those who arrived on the time raids were made on the various clubs of the city, and the case against whom was dismissed. It appears that many of the officers who came to them for their summonses and warrants, and that for some reason the then chief issued an order that this money be paid first for a time at least. In this cash receipt was affixed a signed over for the fund. The names of the men subscribing and the amounts they donated are as follows:

A. E. Miller, $10; J. C. Moore, $12.25; B. Duthos, $8.50; W. Johnson, $2.25; J. A. Shriver, $12.25; E. H. Moore, $13.50; A. E. Miller, $12.50; G. S. Smith, $10; J. A. Downes, $26.75; W. McIvor, $10; John Burbeck, $7.75; James Campbell, $18.50; ex-Chief Carpenter, $13.60; William Davis, $10; J. G. McDonald, $6.50; J. C. Duthos, $15.60; C. P. Kneeling, $2.50.

There were present at the inquiry:

Prosecutor Heffernan, Chief Lancey and Alderman Clarke as chairman of the civic committee.

Tom McCullough, the accountant for the department, stated he subscribed to the fund raised to pay Major Johnson had to had his money said McCullough, and although I considered it a rotten deal I did not want it to get into the papers that there were men on the police department who were more than I.

Mr. Booth: That was you summing up the case then, that someone on the police department had taken the money? Yes.

The witness was then examined regarding a former theft of $55, and stated that in order to pay this sum back a receipt was signed for the amount, and the money in my pocket at the time I certainly would not have given it.

At the conclusion of the session Mr. Booth indicated that the money would be brought before the investigating committee of the council, when it would be decided whether a thorough probe would be made into the whole business.

Mr. Booth: Did you consider that a correct way to handle the funds? No, I did not.

Did you raise any objections to this procedure at the time? No.

You were willing to let the responsible officer who was taking the responsibility? It was done at Chief Carpenter's desk and he was there at the time.

Did you consider you to falsify the books of the department would you do so? No, I would not.

What was that not making the books? It had to be made up by the city of Edmonton and I care.

Did you consider that was the right way to do it? No.

What inspired the action then was to prevent adverse comments? Yes.

Mr. Heffernan: Still, there was patching up the books. By whose order was it done? Chief Carpenter's.

THE ARROGANCE OF THE "PHYSICALLY FIT"

Speaking in London to an institute of sanitary engineers, Sir William Ramsey asks whether it would not be better to leave the unfit to die.

Waiving the barbs of his suggestion, Sir William's question raises that other question of how he—or for that matter, anyone else—is qualified to judge who constitutes the unfit.

Applied to the stone age, possibly there might be some ground for his hypothesis that the physically weak or handicapped were unfit. But in this day and generation, with the application of science to the furnishing of the necessities of the human animal, it is no longer essential that to be useful the individual must have hair on his chest. Some of the greatest men of the age are defective in some sense. Edison himself is nearly stone deaf. John D. Rockefeller is a dyspeptic. Will Crookes has been lame since his birth and was the product of the poor house. Lloyd George was certainly not robust as a child, and he escaped the charities by a hairbreadth. Nova Scotia has a very able premier who stumps the country with an artificial leg and Texas has a senator who is absolutely blind. In fact the list of useful persons who have some handicap physically is so long that it could not be printed in a single volume, and Ramsey will have to search his own title to mental perfection if he is going to stand on the hypothesis that the world would have profited by permitting such to go by the board. Or if his theory is that the poor-house product cannot be depended upon to fight the battles of life he should take a look at Nelson, found on a door-step like a kitten and unable to see the surrender signal on account of his wooden eye.

The world is at all times swiftest with self-superior paranoias like Ramsey who imagine that because of some measurement of biceps or such peculiarity they constitute the pattern for humanity and that none other are fit to survive. And just to keep them level, some individual whose physical properties would not let him into the Mexican army rises every once in a while to show by his performance that no particular class of human animal has a monopoly upon the radio-activity of the mental spark.

STRANGE STATESMANSHIP OF SIR RICHARD McBRIE

With something between twelve and twenty million dollars outstanding and over-due in payments owed the government for lands sold to speculators, Dick McBride's British Columbia government is about to raise a temporary loan against revenue to the amount of $7,500,000, for the purpose of putting itself in funds to carry on the regular business of the province.

While this is being done, less than 50 per cent. of the population of the province of British Columbia is actually in the business of farming, and the cities of the Coast are importing agricultural products from New Zealand, Australia, Washington and Oregon.

The sale of the province's land to the speculators locks up the land against the settler. But when the speculator finds himself unable to sell the land at the advanced prices, the government permits him grace, meanwhile borrowing money to take the place of what the speculator owes and compelling the residents of the cities to buy imported farm products to take the place of what should be grown on land held out of use by the speculators.

And yet the conservative press would have it that McBride is a statesman. Great joke!

WHEN SCHOOL MARMS GO OUT ON STRIKE

The teacher's strike in Herefordshire is a new one on us among the pedagogues, but it is a wonder it hasn't come sooner. Generally there has been no sign of a tendency among teachers to work by union or combination, such as it has been found necessary and desirable among laborers, nor on the other hand have the teachers been able to give themselves professional status by the ways that are called the professions usually have. The doctors and lawyers, for example, fix the standard at which they enter for training as well as the standard of attainment enabling them to practice, they regulate the conduct of their own members and the price at which their services are available to the public. Teachers so far have belonged neither to an effective union nor to a practically closed profession. We may perhaps say they are in it for what they get out of it, but the initial impulse prompting to teachers' work must be of a rather unselfish and philanthropic sort. The public so far have not responded to this sacrifice by liberality of reward. It is to be hoped that the Herefordshire teachers will get some results.

AN EXPECTED RESULT OF THE FORD EXPERIMENT

Henry Ford, the Detroit automobile manufacturer, whose profit-sharing plan has materially increased the wages of his employees, seems to have answered the question "Why is it so many thousands of young men nowadays refuse to get married?" Since Ford's profit-sharing plan was announced several weeks ago almost one hundred of his employees have been married.

Most of them have been engaged to their sweethearts for quite a while, according to their own statements, and have been trying to save up enough money to give them a start but now, with living wages assured them as long as they are industrious and behave themselves, they are in a position to take wives. Aside from any other beneficial features of Ford's plan, this one result of encouraging marriages makes it most highly commendable.

IS CHILD CROSS,
FEVERISH, SICK

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated, give "California Syrup of Figs."

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child will simply not stop playing to eat or drink, and the result is that he becomes slightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach turns, then sour little oil becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, doesn't sleep or dream well, has a constant thirst, stomach-ache or diarrhea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs." This has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups too. It is a syrup of dried figs.

It is a syrup of dried figs.

The trouble took root when a conscientious, cold-blooded doctrine, devoid of all sympathy, caused the destruction of which had not been perceived in time.

Steam power and the resultant factory system placed in the hands of a few men the right to command suffering as extremely acute, though fortunately it is not so wide-spread or of such long duration as in more definitely proletarian areas. But the result is that the thought that it has taken the most democratic continent to develop a social and economic system that respects the individual, has been lost for three generations. Human beings became dependent on necessities which had not been thought of in the 18th century. The result of this command was the first to be preferred when the new status of industrialism was dimly perceived. And this law was applied to labor, and the employer developed to such an extent that an employer, or contractor, is justified by public opinion in collecting at a particular spot for his service, or services, what should be required in payment. The development of Canada should be developed as a social and economic, as well as a political and a moral issue and a human problem. The number of centuries taken in securing the maximum yield of produce from the Dominion is a record of the progress of the world. The rapid development, or partial development, of certain districts is material to certain interests. To what extent are these interests justifiable? Bringing to their aid more men than can be supported for an extended period?

A particular branch of railway is run by the people of the country at a cost which is only partly met by the fares paid by the men required for the people's service in summer are not let loose in winter. If it is good for the provinces to have the services of certain districts, then the men who serve the country by reaping them should not be treated as vagrants because winter deprives them of their means of support. In other words, where seasonal trades are highly developed for the benefit of the community, it is the duty of the people to help those engaged in them and for these trades from bearing by their sufferings the entire burden of progress. Socialists would place the duty on the State, trusting to laws to curb the unscrupulous. An alternative is to make specific training and controlled greed when vast opportunity gives the controlling element powers almost of life and death over its subjects. And to bring in a new scheme and struggle only to earn cold until it can hold even wealthy corporations responsible for the results of their actions.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY PARTY

PELA MADE FOR THE INDUSTRIES THE CITY ALREADY POSSESSES

To the Editor of the Capital:

I notice by recent reports in the Edmonton Industrial News that a bill has been introduced in the Legislature which would require the city council with a proposition to take over the department of industrial commission, and have asked the city to expand its boundaries to include the citizens' money this year to induce new industries to locate in the city.

I trust before granting this that the council will consider the matter very carefully as under present conditions the city must be careful of its expenditures and first of all to do to our utmost for the industry that we have at present in order to encourage them to expand.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell Passes the Half-Century Mark Today

Mrs. Patrick Campbell, the gifted actress, who has been known as a member of American tours, will pass the half century mark today. Her maiden name was Beatrice Stirling, then Mrs. Campbell. She was born in 1859 in the state of Maine as Mrs. Patrick Campbell. She married Mr. Campbell, who was a son of a Hong Kong banker, 20 years ago. They had two sons and a daughter, that she began her career as an actress with an amateur dramatic club. A year later she turned professional and toured England with the Page-Green and Buchanan companies.

In 1876 the first Mrs. Campbell was recognized by the critics as an actress of rare merit.

She had also the fact to her credit that a grant of $12,000 to the curlers was necessary, the council voted this sum over her head.

She died in 1881, and her public committee of the city council at its meeting this week will report to the council if they are compelled to do so.

Her husband died in 1888, and she extended to the south side industries, the conditions of which are that they pay interest on the expenditure for a year, interest on the capital, and interest on the interest.

She has given a large amount of time to the industrial association.

MARCONI SCANDAL AROUSED INTEREST AGAIN IN ENGLAND

Lord Murray Examined on Oath to Prevent an Inconvenient Speech.

NEW SCHEME FOR LORDS TO FORCE AN ELECTION

Reject Army Budget and Put Army Out of Existence in Ireland.

London, Feb. 9.—On the eve of the re-establishing of parliament, L. C. Maxse, editor of the National Review, returned to Lord Murray's residence with the following ultimatum: decline in a long letter to the Morning Post. Among other things, Mr. Maxse suggests that the House of Lords appoint a select committee to examine Lord Murray on this, and thus "spare him the temptation of making a speech without any moral sanction."

Referring to Lord Murray's dealings with the money-lenders, Mr. Maxse says that Lord Murray's friendship with the Liberal party's funds cost the party between $150,000 and $200,000 through the broker alone, apart from any losses on American dividends.

No Proceedings Taken.

"No proceedings," he says, "were taken against Fenner, who had misappropriated this immense sum, although the civil service committee, which the other month cleared Fenner, had been likewise deputed to the extent of over $20,000. Fenner was allowed to remain in business at the expense of his life, and to keep his ultimate wealth over 100,000 pounds."

Lord Murray is further accused of neglecting his plain duty in remaining silent while the select committee of inquiry was slow in doing its work. In his statement to his late brother, Captain Murray, he was in the country for nearly two months of the committee's sittings.

Secret Party Funds.

Mr. Maxse also calls upon Lord Murray to make public the secret distribution of secret party funds on a date of the exposition of 1911, at a time when the "list" would presumably be under discussion, and also to elucidate the secret arrangement of the party's funds in home ranks ordinary, while his colleagues were engrossed in settling the coal strike, which might be expected to effect the market value of the party funds.

His majesty the king will open state tomorrow (Tuesday) the most momentous parliamentary session of the last century, a session in which one of the greatest bills will put every other question into the shade as never before in living memory: has parliament with the shadow of civil war threatening it. There are a number of proposed measures, among them, those as the navy, the South African deportations, the Welsh disestablishment bill, and education, but the bill which will receive greater press of mind of all parties for which to come is whether the home rule bill will be passed and the people of Ulster driven to extreme measures to resist it.

Demanding General Election.

In view of the gravity of the question, the house of lords is in favor of immediately calling a session of parliament, which will be moved by Lord Middleton is contained in the following terms: "This house respects the gracious speech of the third day of this session, and recommends that the government of this country be given the sanction of nation before carrying into law grave changes in the constitution."

In the house of commons Mr. Walter Long will begin an attack on the government home rule proposal. It is not expected that the measure itself will be introduced before April, but immediately after the speech is on the floor of the house, the bill will have to be concluded, the house will have to spend some weeks voting supplementary estimates for the civil service etc.,

Rejected Army Budget.

It is reported the last parliament due to a dissolution of parliament and thus defeat the home rule measure is for the house of lords to reject the bill, and then the house of commons, after the army vote, will be compelled to accept the bill, and thus the government would be compelled to appeal to the country.

It is believed that such an extreme course is hardly likely to be favored by the majority of peers, and is to be favored if anything the bill in such a way as to put the army out of existence in Ireland alone, and thus prevent it being employed to coerce Ulster.

FIRST THINGS

Safety Tunnels. The first great railway tunnel in America, the Hoosac tunnel in Massachusetts, was completed in 1875, and the first train passed through the tube on this date in that year. This "pioneer" of modern engineering, the Hoosac tunnel in the New World, was commenced in 1851 for the use of the line between Boston and Albany. The difficulties attending the engineering were so great that the tunnel was twice abandoned. When it was finally completed it had cost the state of Massachusetts about $16,000,000. The tunnel is four and three-quarters miles in length, and is 100 feet wide at the mouth, through which the next important tunnel of this kind was the Chester tunnel under the Detroit river, between Canada and Michigan. This tunnel was completed in 1872, and was also closed owing to continued irrigation of water after some 50 yards of headings had been driven. This project was not revived until 1906.

QUEEN MARY MAKES PILE OUT OF STOCK EXCHANGE GAMBLE

London, Feb. 9.—Queen Mary is said to be $35,000 richer as a result of the recent boom in securities on the stock exchange. Her majesty bought a large stock of British Consols, a portion of which she is said to have taken to the main stars of domestic life, such as roomy cupboards, upon which, after all, happiness and comfort depends a good deal. One admirable feature in this recent boom is the mixture of classes, which it involves. If you huddle together the very poor you create slums, if you associate the rich, you create a social atmosphere of wealth, and the middle class, which is the backbone of the nation, profits by it.

Miss Vernon, the queen's confidential maid-of-all-work, and her husband, the chamberlain, are the only ones of whom it is known that they are very young. The queen's adviser in the matter.

Mrs. Ernest Cassell was the queen's adviser in the matter.

KING GEORGE IS OWNER OF WORST SLUMS IN LONDON

Setting Good Example By Cleaning Them Up and Bettering Conditions

London, Feb. 9.—It is not generally remembered that King George or the Prince of Wales, as the beneficiary of the estates of the duchy of Cornwall, were the landlord of one of the worst slums in London. There is a part of town to make people happy and comfortable. His majesty also recognized the fundamental principles that are to be observed if the object is to be obtained. He has been instrumental in the clearing of substantial, comfortable and cleanly dwellings, with every modern improvement in ventilation, lighting, heating, water supply, sanitation, etc., with a view to the health of the occupants, upon whom, after all, happiness and comfort depends a good deal. One admirable feature in this recent boom is the mixture of classes, which it involves.

RUSSIAN EMBROIDERY NOW IN HIGH FAVOR

One of the most attractive novelties of the season is the handsome Russian embroidery which some of the more exclusive tailors are using on the new three-quarter length coats. This embroidery is worked on the glove kid or very fine vandyk cloth which has a surface texture. As a rule the designs are executed in bands about eight or ten inches wide and these bands are used to confine the folds of the mantle half-way between the waist line and the hem.

On white or pastel pink, duvettes, these embroideries give splendid effects. They are carried out in heavy metallic threads, and the designs are metallic embroidery. Large copper or dull gold buttons rimmed in jet are used on these coats and the linings are made of various materials; of these, perhaps, the most popular with metallic embroidery is the favorite.

Nothing could be more cozy than this delicious wrap coat with its slightly gathered waist in bust and down to the hand of embroidery which forms a cincture. The fullness then wears away over the lower part of the coat, and the lower part of the sleeves. A collar of chinchia, saffron or alpaca almost always added. These wraps are worn over smart little robes of supple satin or crepe de chine. They are worn as a coat and even more effectively.

I recently saw an ideal model in pure white, with a wide band of Russian embroidery carried out in deep purple silks on a deep blue ground. There were copper threads running all around the coat, and the buttons were of large copper buttons instead of the usual small copper buttons usually used. The wrap was peared in the front and sleeves. The lining was composed of dull blue taffeta shot with copper and the collar was of white silk. It is a coat for a lady's wrap, perfect in every detail.

For day wear the long waisted coat still remains a favorite. I mean the coat with a wide band of embroidery, well down on the hips. These long waisted coats are frequently worn over very short waisted blouses, a curious idea, but it is effective. When the wrap coat is off the off-the-shoulder blouse comes as a surprise.

"Robin Hood" the interesting continuing story of Robin known to every man, woman and child is the big feature film that is offered by the Bijou management for today and tomorrow, in line with the high grade policy of Empire photo-play theater that famous photo-play producer has been pursuing at a large cost and shown to the moving picture patrons of the city at only the regular price of admission.

No subject can compare with the spectacular scenes that make up the spectacular experiences of the famous gallant bear-ear and his merry band. His doings have been utilized as the theme for many a picture, but it is effective. When the wrap coat is off the off-the-shoulder blouse comes as a surprise.

COOKING RECIPES

BUCKWHEAT PANCAKES

Three cups flour, four eggs, one cup buckwheat flour, six tablespoons salt, dissolved yeast in lukewarm water, milk with half a pint of milk to make it a batter as for bread. Put in large pan, covered to rise. In two hours it will be ready to eat. Dissolve in a little warm water. Fry on griddle. Two tablespoons of molasses must be added if desired and the pancake will be delicious. Buckwheat cakes after being cut in half are fried with scraped maple sugar. Put in pitcher $\frac{1}{2}$ cup scraped maple sugar, grated rind of one nutmeg, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup cream. Boil thoroughly and pour over griddle cakes. This is the old-fashioned way of serving.

WHITE FRUIT CAKE

Have a nice recipe for white fruit cake which I will send, as requested. I have a few copies of my book "How to Make a Cake" which you may like.

It is true that the craze for fur and feather trimming has extended even to the use of some of the recent fashions.

It is not so bizarre as it sounds, for a glimpse of some of these new garments will show that the trimmings improve them to be altogether charming and fascinating.

Petticoats of fine lace or chiffon or silk, the pale pink are flattered around the edge with a scant puffing of net, or a scant flounce of shiny lace edges at the top with the narrowest lace. The lace can be white, yellow, curled feathers or marabout.

Another style of petticoat is made perfectly plain with the exception of a narrow lace border at the bottom, which is placed on the very edge and caught here and there with tiny chiffon roses. Marabout and also white coney seed spangles are also used.

For these plain petticoats which are designed especially for wear with the slashed dancing frock.

In the same case with the petticoats may be seen some charming negligees, which show quite a lavish use of fur and marabout trimming. In fact, these negligees are as elaborate with the lace and the fine lace as the plain petticoats.

Among the practical washable lingerie are beautiful combinations of lace, net, petticoats and combinations.

Several shorts exhibit a great variety of these garments in different styles. The newest French nightgown is the one-piece, with the fullness gathered onto a hand-embroidered yoke, while the three-quarter length sleeves are bound around the neck with scalloping and lace embroidery.

Medallions or insertion of real fillet or Irish crochet often adds to the daintiness of these gowns. An additional feature is the lace which has ever been a favorite style with French women—it made severely plain with no fullness, and with the fines of scalloping and hand embroidery, enclosing the neck and the wrist length sleeves.
